SANTA FE offers

WITNESSING VETERANS STORIES A GUIDE FOR THE COMMUNITY

3 P.M., SUNDAY, JANUARY 24

401 Old Taos Highway
Santa Fe: the Atencio Room

Coming home from combat or military service in general only begins the day a soldier, sailor, or Marine returns to family. The journey home can be a challenging road with many readjustments to civilian life. Much will have changed during their time of service. Welcoming a veteran home should never end on the day that they arrive home. Telling and witnessing stories are good ways to communicate knowledge, share history, and connect us all.

At this workshop you will learn:

- How to recognize PTSD
- How to listen to a veteran's stories
- How to be aware of your own reactions
- How to select the best setting for witnessing, and more

Presenters: Lisa Rosenthal, Founder & Executive Director, Vet Art Project
Lin Daley, Vet Art Project Clinical Director

FREE but a $10 suggested donation includes admission to 4 p.m.
performance of New Art About War and Service created in workshops with

The Vet Art Project creates opportunities for veterans and family members to work in collaboration with artists from all disciplines to create new art about war and service for public performance and viewing. The program aims to support our veterans and family members, create stronger voices among our veterans, offer a venue to hear the voices of our veterans, and foster discussions about how war affects us all. vetartproject.com
